Ted Arison

Partner

Ted Arison had never seen a professional basketball game when he was approached about becoming a Partner in a dream, NBA basketball in South Florida. It was his civic pride and his commitment to the community that made his decision to join THE HEAT partnership an easy one. "For what it means to the city....it's all worth it," he said at the time.

The Israeli-born son of a shipowner, Arison entered the American University of Beirut at 16 to study engineering. Unfortunately, World War II cut short his studies. Joining the British army, he served in Italy and Germany, attaining the rank of Sergeant Major.

After the war, Arison's father died and, as the only son, he was asked to take over the family shipping business, M. Dizengoff and Co.

Arison sold the company in the early 1950's and operated his own fleet of cargo ships. Business soured, however, so he decided to sell the fleet and give up shipping entirely.

He then moved to the United States in 1954 and, for a twelve-year period, operated a successful air cargo company. In 1966, he sold his share of the business and decided to retire in Miami.

His retirement ended early, however, when he assumed control of a passenger shipping company. A disastrous financial situation had left the company without a ship. Arison successfully negotiated a deal which brought a Norwegian ship to Miami, and Norwegian Caribbean Cruise Lines was born. An innovation of the company was the first packaged air fare and cruise combination, which is the staple of today's industry.

In 1972, Arison founded Carnival Cruise Lines, which was an immediate success and became the cornerstone of his financial holdings.

Arison is Chairman of Hamilton Holdings which oversees vast realty holdings in the Southeastern United States. Hamilton Holdings acquired two savings and loan institutions which were combined to become Ensign Banks, F.S.B., one of the nation's ten largest federal savings banks.

In addition to business concerns, Arison is an active philanthropist and humanitarian. He is the chief benefactor of the Miami-based National Foundation for Advancement in the Arts which encourages aspiring young artists to continue their studies through a scholarship awards program. This foundation was instrumental in launching Miami's New World Symphony which has won rave reviews. His own Arison Foundation makes substantial contributions to a variety of cultural and charitable organizations primarily in the Greater Miami Community.

Arison also is a member of the Greater Miami Jewish Federation and president of the Tel Aviv Foundation. He is a founder of Mt. Sinai Medical Center, which selected him as it Distinguished Achievement Award honoree in 1983.

In 1988, Arison received an Honorary Doctor of Laws degree from Barry University.

Zev Bufman

Partner

It requires good business savvy and a bit of showmanship to help bring an NBA expansion franchise into existence. In the early stages of the NBA effort, Zev Bufman, Billy Cunningham and Lewis Schaffel worked very hard to assure success for the MIAMI HEAT.

Born in Israel, he came to the United States in the early 50's to study at L.A. State College, where he earned a degree in Theatre Arts. Bufman gained practical experience by acting on the stage and in various film and television roles. In 1959 while still in college he embarked on his new career. He opened Le Grand, the first dinner theatre in the United States. His Broadway career began when he created "Vintage '60" and co-produced it with David Merrick.

Bufman arrived in Miami in 1962 where he leased and became sole owner of the Coconut Grove Playhouse. Five years later he premiered the first season of the Parker Playhouse in Fort Lauderdale.

He created a major sensation on Broadway in 1966 with the American version of "Marat/Sade." In addition to critical acclaim, the play received several Tony Award nominations. The following year "Your Own Thing" took New York by storm by becoming the first Off-Broadway musical to win the New York Drama Critics' Circle Award.

In 1976 his version of "The Magnificent Yankee," starring James Whitmore and Audra Lindley, was chosen by the John F. Kennedy Center of the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C. as its Bicentennial production.

In the late 1970's Bufman was producing two or three Broadway shows a year. He brought four classic musical revivals back to Broadway, "Oklahoma," "Brigadoon," "West Side Story," and "Peter Pan," starring Sandy Duncan. In 1982 he presented Elizabeth Taylor in her Broadway debut "Little Foxes" and repeated the same in London in 1983-84. Later in 1984 he teamed up Elizabeth Taylor with Richard Burton in the Broadway production of "Private Lives." Later in the 1980's he presented Andrew Lloyd Webber's "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat."

Bufman has presented numerous stars in the theater, such as Dustin Hoffman in "Jimmy Shine," Muhammad Ali in "Buck White," Henry Fonda in "The Trial of A. Lincoln," plus such luminaries as Carol Channing, Angela Lansbury, Charlton Heston, Jason Robards Jr. and Valerie Harper. His many Broadway shows have gathered over 27 Tony Award nominations.

He has been an active member for several years on the Board of Directors of the Wolf Trap Amphitheater in Washington, D.C. and the New World Symphony. Most recently, Bufman has announced a new joint venture with Blockbuster Entertainment Corp. to build a chain of 20,000 seat amphitheaters throughout the country. The first one in Phoenix has just opened, the second one in Charlotte, NC is under construction and will open in May 1991.

Billy Cunningham

Partner

Billy Cunningham is an NBA success story. For his accomplishments as a player, he was selected to the Basketball Hall of Fame. As a coach, he won 200 and 300 games faster than any coach in League history. As a basketball executive, he has brought an NBA expansion team to South Florida and is going to make them a winner.

The reason Cunningham has been a winner is because he leaves nothing to chance. His belief that organization, hardwork and dedication are what it takes to succeed has made him one of the most respected minds in the NBA.

Born in 1943, the Brooklyn native spent many hours playing basketball with his boyhood friend, Lewis Schaffel. He later attended the University of North Carolina, where he was a two-time All-American who always impressed Coach Dean Smith with the intelligence and hard work that he brought to the game.

Cunningham was drafted on the first round of the 1965 NBA Draft by the Philadelphia 76ers and played for 11 years with the Sixers and the Carolina Cougars of the American Basketball Association. He is remembered most for his desire to excel and his complete dedication to the game. It was this desire and dedication that made him a key member of the 1966-67 76ers Championship Team that is considered by many to be the greatest team of all-time. Other career achievements include being named to the 1966 NBA All-Rookie Team and four All-NBA Squads. In 1972-73, he also was selected as the Most Valuable Player in the ABA. This past offseason, Cunningham was one of 10 initial inductees chosen for selection into the New York City Basketball Hall of Fame.

Cunningham's coaching career began on November 4, 1977 when he became Head Coach of the 76ers. During his career he won 454 games and lost 196 for a .698 winning percentage. He led the Sixers to the NBA title in 1982-83 and on two other occasions, his teams went to the NBA Finals. His 66 playoff wins put him in fourth place on the all-time list, behind Pat Riley, Red Auerbach and K.C. Jones.

As a Partner in the MIAMI HEAT, he was instrumental in bringing the NBA to South Florida. Now his responsibilities include building a strong foundation for the team. Cunningham knows what it means to be a winner, and he will do what it takes to make The HEAT just that.

Cunningham resides in North Miami Beach. He and his wife Sondra have two daughters, Stephanie and Heather.

Lewis Schaffel

Managing Partner

The dream of the MIAMI HEAT first began when two buddies from Brooklyn, Lewis Schaffel and Billy Cunningham, friends since they were eight years old, started talking privately to themselves about owning an NBA franchise. Between them, they had worked at every facet of the game—Cunningham as a player and coach; Schaffel as a player representative, executive of three League franchises and as a member of the NBA Board of Governors. They both took a shot—it was worth everything to make their dream come true.

Without anything more than a spirit to succeed, Schaffel resigned as Chief Operating Officer of the NBA New Jersey Nets in June 1986, moved to Miami, and with Cunningham and Zev Bufman began the arduous journey of bringing THE HEAT to South Florida.

Schaffel's NBA connection began in 1970 when he became a sports agent. Starting with just one client, Nate Archibald, he and his partner Jerry Davis were representing more than 30 NBA players by 1977 and had created one of the most successful organizations of its kind in the country.

He demonstrated a penchant for risk-taking and the unusual when he walked away from their successful business and joined the management side of the NBA (the first ever to make such a switch) as General Manager of the New Orleans Jazz. Immediately after League rules allowed it, his initial act with the Jazz was the signing of Len "Truck" Robinson as the NBA's initial veteran free agent. His intuition proved correct as Robinson was named First Team All-NBA and led the League in rebounding. The Jazz prospered too, setting a then-franchise record for victories in a season.

Schaffel subsequently went on to Atlanta where he was on the Board of Directors for both the Atlanta Hawks and Braves and then returned home to become Chief Operating Officer and NBA Governor of the New Jersey Nets.

In New Jersey, Schaffel hired Stan Albeck as Head Coach. The Nets finished the regular season by winning 19 of their last 26 games and went on to defeat the defending World Champion Philadelphia 76ers in the first round of the playoffs.

All of his past experiences served as the foundation to prepare him for the job in Miami. "There is no other challenge I could possibly have committed myself to which has brought more personal satisfaction and total fulfillment than what I am doing right now," said Schaffel. "THE HEAT was a dream—now it is forever. Billy and I are the perfect example for all to see: if you can dream it...you can accomplish it."

Ron Rothstein

Head Coach

Among the priorities the MIAMI HEAT hierarchy was looking for in a Head Coach was a man who could not only teach, but would also provide a sturdy base to build around for the future success of the team.

Partners Lewis Schaffel and Billy Cunningham along with Director of Player Personnel Stu Inman found him sitting on the bench during the 1988 NBA Finals. His name, Ron Rothstein, Chuck Daly's number one assistant in Detroit.

"We had certain goals we wanted to establish in building the franchise from the ground up," said Schaffel, in announcing the hiring. "Ron Rothstein brings to THE HEAT many of those qualities and characteristics we wanted to help us achieve those goals."

Rothstein was named Head Coach on July 12, 1988 and began the task of building a team that would be a mix of youthful energy and veteran leadership. In its initial two seasons, THE HEAT has had one of the youngest and most aggressive teams in the NBA. Although the team has struggled early in its quest for victories, opponents took notice of the MIAMI HEAT squad that played hard and never gave up regardless of score. Much of the credit for Miami's relentless energy and never-say-die spirit goes to Rothstein who made sure his team gave 100% in every game and in every practice.

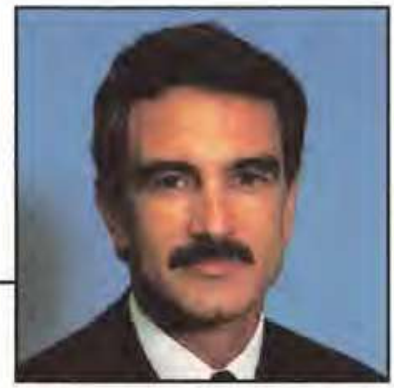
He began his career in the NBA in 1979 as the Northeastern regional scout for the Atlanta Hawks. In 1982, he moved to a full-time scouting post with the New York Knicks. Rothstein's NBA coaching break came before the '83-'84 season, when old friend and former Atlanta Head Coach Mike Fratello asked him to be one of his assistants.

Three years later Rothstein moved to Detroit and was thrust into the spotlight as the defensive mastermind behind the Pistons. In 1986-87, Detroit's defense extended the Boston Celtics to seven games before losing in the Eastern Conference Finals. The following season, the Pistons were four points shy of upending the Los Angeles Lakers for the NBA Title.

The 47-year old Rothstein realizes that it will take a while for THE HEAT to warm up. "You've got to be patient with your players. They are going to make mistakes. This takes time. The thing I want to stress is that we want to get better every time we step on the court. Shortcuts lead down the road to failure."

Rothstein was an assistant coach at Upsala College in New Jersey in 1974-75. He also coached at the high school level. In 1979 he was selected Westchester County's Coach of the Year while at Eastchester High School in New York.

He earned a Masters' Degree from Hunter College in New York after graduating from the University of Rhode Island in 1964. Rothstein lives in Hollywood with his wife Olivia and their two children David, a junior at Holy Cross College, and Dana, a high school senior.



Dave Wohl

Assistant Coach

Although he was a scout with THE HEAT for nine months prior to his appointment as assistant coach, Dave Wohl brought extensive NBA coaching experience to the job.

Prior to joining THE HEAT, the 41-year old Wohl was Head Coach of the New Jersey Nets for two and one-half seasons. Considered a "thinking man's coach", Wohl came to the Nets after a three-year stint with the Los Angeles Lakers as an assistant to Pat Riley. He was an intricate part of their success story, helping the club capture the NBA Championship in his last season (1984-85) on the West Coast. The Lakers posted a 174-72 (.707) record, won three straight Western Conference titles and made three consecutive appearances in the NBA Championship Series during his tenure.

Wohl joined the Lakers after serving as an assistant with the Milwaukee Bucks and Coach Don Nelson for three seasons starting in 1979. Further exemplifying the positive influence he provided as a coach, the Bucks captured three straight division titles during that span, highlighted by a 60-22 record in 1981-82.

His start in the coaching ranks came in 1978 when Kevin Loughery hired his former player and, in doing so, launched Wohl on his new and challenging career path.

Prior to his coaching debut, he had just finished a seven-year career in the NBA where he played in 410 games and scored over 2,500 points. His last stop was with the Nets during the team's tenure at Rutgers Athletic Center in Piscataway, where he averaged 6.6 ppg. over two seasons before retiring. Drafted on the third round of the 1971 NBA draft by the Philadelphia 76ers, Wohl played for five different teams in the League.

A graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, Wohl was originally recruited to play football but became a star for the Quaker basketball team. He was a two-time All-Ivy League selection at guard and led the Quakers to two Ivy-League titles and two NCAA Tournament appearances during his junior and senior seasons.

Wohl is single and resides in Coral Gables.

Tony Fiorentino

Assistant Coach

A long-time high school coaching rival of Ron Rothstein, Tony Fiorentino has been with THE HEAT the past two seasons after spending two years as an assistant coach at Iona College.

Fiorentino's responsibilities include advance scouting as well as assisting at practice and with game preparation.

His highly successful coaching career began in 1975 when he was named an assistant at Mt. Vernon (NY) High School. Three years later he was elevated to the head coaching position leading Mt. Vernon to New York State Championship titles in 1979 and 1981. His teams won five Section One crowns and seven league titles enroute to his compiling a 182-21 career coaching record. When he resigned to become an assistant at Iona, his .897 winning percentage was the highest among all active high school coaches in New York State.

At Mt. Vernon, Fiorentino was named Coach-of-the-Year three times by both the New York Daily News and the Westchester County Coaches Association. Among the players he coached in high school were Rodney McCray of the Dallas Mavericks and Roy Smith, a pitcher for the Minnesota Twins, whom he coached in baseball as well as basketball.

Fiorentino received his undergraduate degree from Dowling (NY) College in 1971 and earned a Masters' in Counseling from the University of Bridgeport in 1975.

Tony and his wife Elizabeth reside on Key Biscayne.

Stu Inman

Director of Player Personnel

While many individuals were involved, the man most responsible for THE HEAT's success in the 1988 Expansion Draft and the last three college drafts was Director of Player Personnel Stu Inman.

In that capacity, Inman's primary responsibility is the evaluation of college and professional talent. He has been involved in this facet of an NBA franchise for the past 21 years.

Inman was one of the original members of the Portland Trailblazers' front office being hired as a scout by the team in 1969 shortly before its first NBA season. He later served the team as Coach, Director of Player Personnel and General Manager. It was under his guidance and skill that Portland drafted such players as Bill Walton, Clyde Drexler and Terry Porter. His drafting expertise propelled the Blazers to the NBA Championship just seven years after the franchise began.

In 1985 Inman joined his old friend Don Nelson in Milwaukee serving as Director of Player Personnel with the Bucks for 18 months before accepting his current position with THE HEAT in September 1987.

Stu and his wife Elinor have five children and twelve grandchildren. They live in North Miami.

Ron Culp

Trainer/Travel Coordinator

Ron Culp brings to THE HEAT not only experience as an NBA trainer, but the expertise of serving in that capacity for an expansion franchise.

Culp, who has 19 years of League experience, began his NBA tenure in 1970-71 as the initial trainer of the then expansion Cleveland Cavaliers. He worked for the Cavs until 1974 when he joined the Portland Trailblazers. It was with the Blazers that Culp enjoyed an 11-year association with Stu Inman, THE HEAT's Director of Player Personnel.

A 1969 graduate of Bowling Green State University, Culp began his training career at Baldwin-Wallace College before accepting the Cleveland job.

He was honored by the National Athletic Trainers Association (NATA) and the National Basketball Association Trainer's Association (NBATA) as the 1986-87 Trainer-of-the-Year for his work that season with the Trailblazers.

Culp and his wife Marilyn live with their daughters, Amanda (10) and Elizabeth (3), in Kendall.

Jones also played with the NBA's Milwaukee Bucks and the Utah Stars of the American Basketball Association.

Jones founded "Concerned Athletes in Action" in 1969 and this past season developed the MIAMI HEAT's SHOOT FOR THE STARS program. The program has become a major success, as statistics indicate a 67% increase in academic excellence and a 95% increase in attendance among students that participated in the program.

His son Askia is currently playing Division I basketball for Kansas State University.

Jorge Cunill

Director of Marketing and Community Services

As THE HEAT's Director of Marketing and Community Services, Jorge Cunill was the driving force behind the creation and production of the Miami HEAT Magazine, which in its first year of existence has already been praised as one of the best team publication in all sports. As its Editor-in-Chief, Cunill oversees the entire production. Also, Cunill is involved in many programs with schools, youth leagues and charity events to support the Miami HEAT's marketing and community team effort in our community.

Prior to joining THE HEAT, Cunill was the sports anchor at Channel 51 as well as Director of Public Relations for the Grand Prix of Miami. Previously he worked as a sports journalist for Diario Las Americas, the largest Spanish daily newspaper in the United States, and served as Sports Director of WQBA Radio, where he broadcast Spanish play-by-play of the Miami Dolphins.

A 1970 graduate of Miami-Dade Community College with an Associate's Degree in Electronic Data, Cunill is the author of "From Havana to Miami, Grand Prix".

Cunill, his wife Liliana and their children Lilibi (20) and Jorge Alex (18) reside in Miami.

AN ACCIDENT CAN BE DEVASTATING

Nothing can be more devastating than to be involved in an accident. It can happen in a car, as a pedestrian, on the job, sports related or at home. It can be an injury that can affect your livelihood, your job security, your family's financial security, your feeling of self-worth and it can happen to you.

Our team at Doctors' Hospital of Hollywood knows the physical and mental trauma each and every patient goes through during these difficult times. Because we know this, our staff not only diagnoses, treats and rehabilitates you but provides the emotional and psychological support necessary to return you to the workplace, family and friends.

This process begins from the time you are brought to our Emergency Department through out patient rehabilitation. Physical pain is controllable and counseling is paramount. We are with you all the way. We specialize in knowing how important your dignity is during rough times and we applaud you on the way back. You do not have to go through this alone. Our hospital provides a private atmosphere in modern facilities.

We look forward to becoming your medical care facility. For more information, please feel free to call our Patient Representative, Ms. Pamela Andrea.

CLAM DUNK

Fresh Ipswich Steamer Clams dunked in clam broth and dunked again in melted butter. A true gourmet treat and only one of many at Pelican Pub, located at the Hillsboro Inlet in Pompano Beach. Casual sea-air dining downstairs and fine dining in the all-new upstairs overlooking the Intracoastal.

Fresh swordfish and dolphin come in over the docks in back daily, while huge Maine lobsters, up to 26 pounds, fly in from New England. Everything is extra-fresh and served in an unmatched waterfront setting. This is the place where the natives go for fresh seafood.

BROADCAST INFORMATION

Throughout the season, HEAT basketball can be heard on WQAM (560 AM) and WRFM (830 AM) radio and seen on WBFS-TV (Channel 33) as well as SportsChannel Florida. Both radio outlets will air all 82 regular season games, while WBFS-TV will telecast 21 games and SportsChannel 45.

Veteran NBA broadcaster Sam Smith will handle play-by-play duties on WQAM Radio as well as WBFS-TV and SportsChannel. The 48-year old Smith, who has 12 years experience broadcasting professional basketball, joined THE HEAT prior to Miami's inaugural season after serving in a similar capacity with the San Antonio Spurs for nine years. During that time, he was twice named by the Associated Press as the Texas Broadcaster-of-the-Year. In 1985, he was also chosen by USA Today as one of the NBA's top play-by-play broadcasters. Smith was also the voice of the ABA Miami Floridians for two seasons. In addition to his NBA experience, he has an extensive background in collegiate athletics, including four years at Notre Dame and two at Arkansas. He also has broadcasted for ESPN, including Top Ranked Boxing, football and basketball. Smith currently is continuing his boxing broadcast career with USA Network and SportsChannel America.

Joining Smith on WQAM, SportsChannel and WBFS-TV again this season is Eric Reid, who before joining THE HEAT in 1988-89, was the radio voice of Providence College and hosted Boston Red Sox pre and post-game shows on the New England Sports Network. Prior to that, Reid was color analyst on Providence broadcasts for three seasons and from 1979-82 did play-by-play of Cornell University basketball. In addition he was the host and writer of "This Week in the Big East," a half hour weekly television show. Currently, he also does TV play-by-play on SportsChannel for University of Miami football and Sun Belt Conference basketball. "I'm not asking you to give me your business. I'm asking you to let me earn it."

Mark Wright

How does a local independent bank compete in today's world of interstate mergers and acquisitions?

Very well, thank you. In fact, it's the overwhelming size and out-of-state ownership of our competitors that make BankAtlantic so unique.

BankAtlantic has the resources to handle even the largest corporate and individual accounts, yet we're small enough to get to know you personally, act quickly and anticipate rather than respond to your needs. Plus we have the flexibility and local insight to make fast, on-the-spot decisions.

To earn your business we're going to work harder, offer better, more personalized service and newer, more innovative products than any other bank.

To put this kind of commitment to work for you, call 1-800-433-5001 and switch on the Power of Positive Banking.
